

Out of Office is a micro curatorial platform that uses the auto reply feature on email accounts to distribute art. I wish to suggest an even more intimate method of distributing and viewing online works, one which is primarily in the comfort of your own mailbox. In order to view the work you need only send an email to the assigned email address and wait for the auto reply.

BLOG

"Out Of Office" Auto-Replies Are Being Turned Into Online Art Distributors

By Emerson Rosenthal — Apr 23 2014

Tweet 0 +1

The best art knocks you off-center. It asks you to question not only your relationship to it, but your relationship to the past, present, and future, to yourself and others. It digs at something preternatural, primordial, even, that begs the sort